

To the Honorable Commissioners of the FCC:

I am writing today regarding The Biennial Review of the FCC's broadcast media ownership rules.

The ownership of television and radio media has been concentrated into the hands of a very few and very powerful multinational corporations. This is absolutely not conducive to democracy, freedom, nor national security.

Due partially to the corporate bias in television and radio programming, I have found that my freedom of speech is being limited at the college that I attend. The stampede and resulting mob-rule mentality instigated by the corporate media has led my college to limit in the name of patriotism the material that I am able to post on the campus bulletin boards. Campus authorities have been brainwashed into believing that only blind faith in the President is patriotic.

In order to sell advertising time and to support the interests of the military industrial complex, corporate media in coordination with certain political leaders has sought a path of demonizing leaders of other nations and spreading unfounded fears to the point that Americans are willing to kill anyone who does not bow down to our president. They have so confused Americans that we have sacrificed many of our most dearly held freedoms and civil liberties in exchange for a false promise of safety.

In the name of every decent ideal that this nation was built upon, these all-powerful media conglomerates must be dissolved and the airways returned to the interests of we the people.

I urge you not to limit any current regulations regarding monopolistic ownership of the media and to strengthen those regulations so that Americans will be able to listen to more independent media broadcasts.

Thank you,
Dale Roose
